Hazardous Weather

Winter Weather Advisory

Weather Forecast Office
Fort Worth, TX
Issued Feb 26, 2022 1:43 AM CST

A Winter Weather Advisory is in effect until Noon Today.

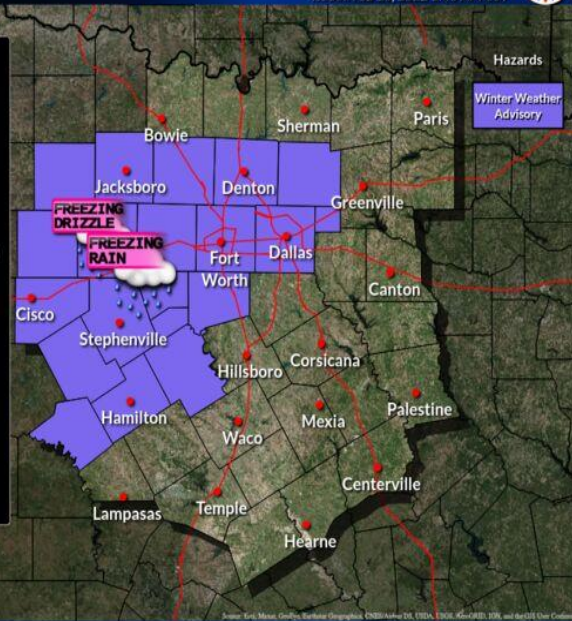

Conditions and Accumulations:

- Light freezing drizzle/rain continuing this morning.
- Icing will be possible on elevated surfaces such as bridges and overpasses.
- Icy conditions will be limited to the morning hours.
- Temperatures will climb above freezing for all by noon, ending the threat of any freezing precipitation.

Impacts:

Hazardous travel possible mainly on bridges and overpasses

NWSFort Worth

weather.gov/fortworth

Light freezing rain and drizzle is possible through the morning hours mainly west of a Comanche to Denton line where bridges and overpasses could accumulate a thin layer of ice. Use extra caution if traveling in these areas. A Winter Weather Advisory is in effect until noon today.

Cold with Rain and Drizzle Today

Light ice accumulations possible in the morning due to freezing drizzle

Weather Forecast Office
Fort Worth, TX
Issued February 26, 2022 2:10 AM CST

This Morning

- Occasional light freezing rain/drizzle during the morning hours. A few sleet pellets also possible.
- Minor ice accumulations possible on bridges and overpasses, but it is unlikely that surface roads will be impacted. Use caution on the roads this morning.
- Temperatures expected to climb above freezing by late morning.

NWSFortWorth

Morning Lows

This Afternoon

- Rain chances will increase during the afternoon especially across Central and East Texas.
- Rain will be the most common precipitation, but some sleet pellets cannot be ruled out at times.
- Temperatures will warm several degrees above freezing, and no impacts are expected.

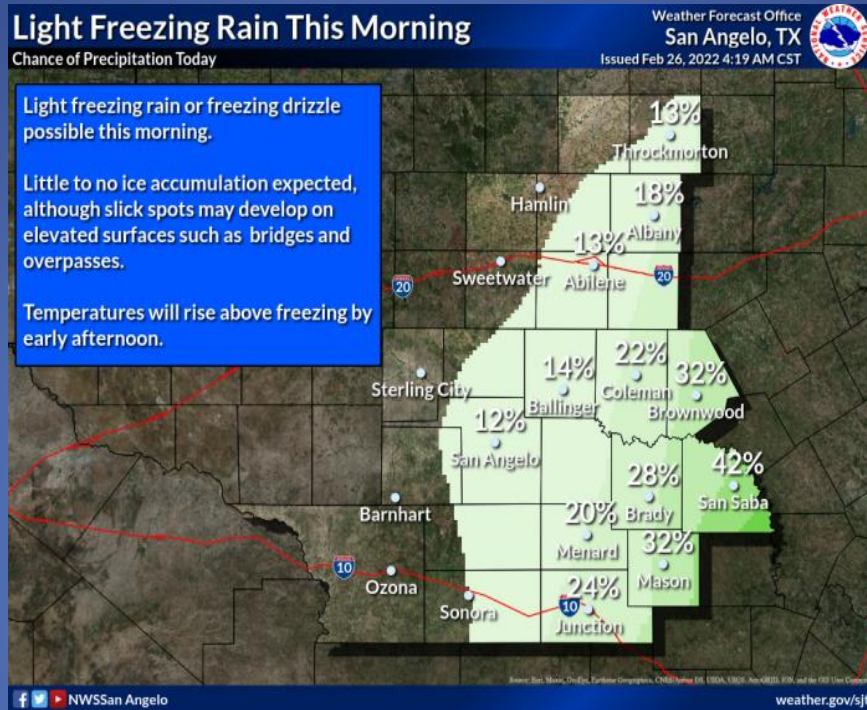

Afternoon Highs

weather.gov/fortworth

Light and rain and drizzle is expected across much of the area today. A period of freezing rain/drizzle could result in minor ice accumulations on bridges and overpasses across western portions of North Texas this morning, but it is unlikely that surface roads will be impacted. Temperatures should warm above freezing during the afternoon with highs in the upper 30s. Rain will be the most prevalent precipitation in the afternoon, but some sleet pellets may mix in at times. The greatest rain chances will be in Central and East Texas during the afternoon

Hazardous Weather

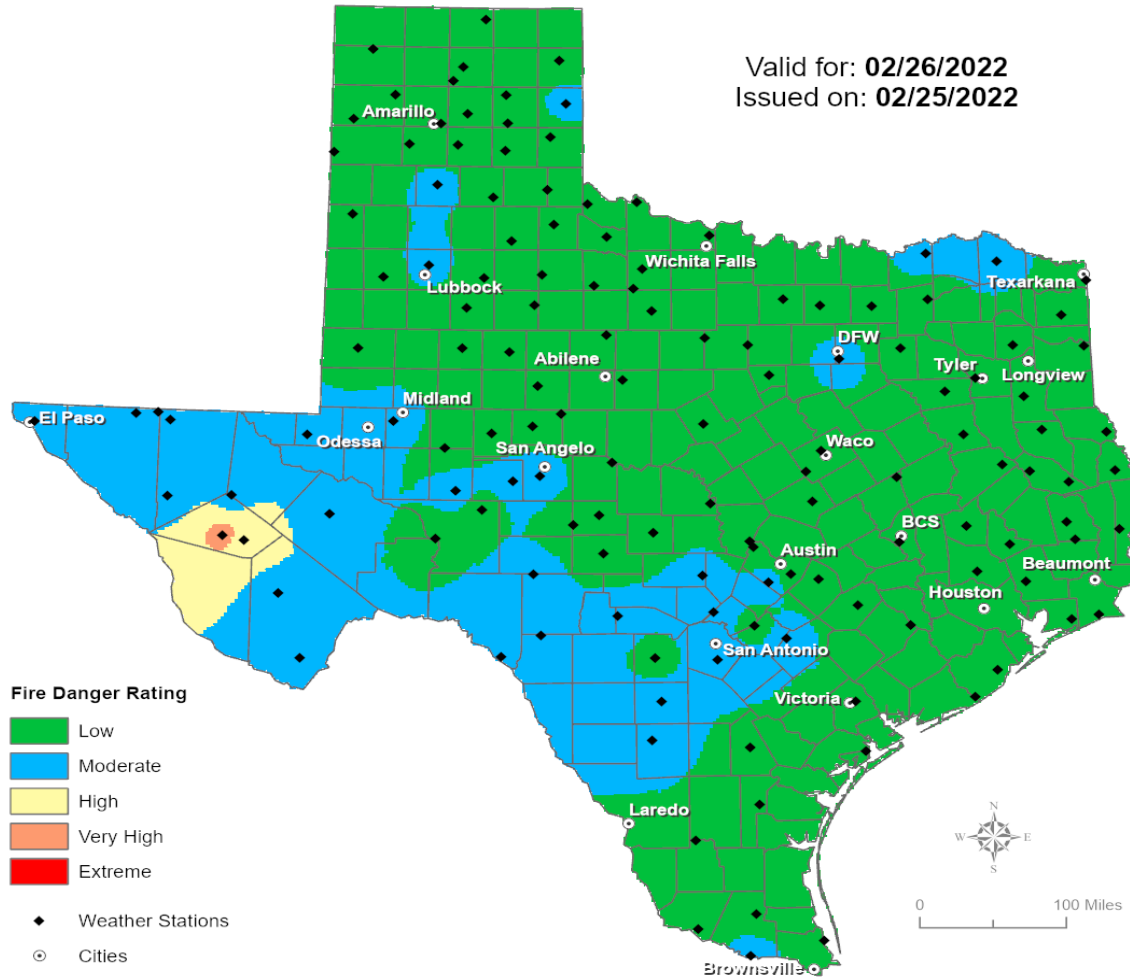

Light freezing rain/freezing drizzle possible this morning, with a few slick spots possible on elevated surfaces.
